

Windows 2003 Server Rapidly Approaches End-Of-Life

Still running Windows 2003 Server?

If you haven't got a plan to change -

You're putting your business at Risk

What does end of support mean for you:

After July 14, 2015 Microsoft will no longer issue security updates for any version of Windows 2003 Server .

So, if you are still running Windows 2003 Server on your servers, you will need to take steps now to plan and execute a migration strategy to protect your infrastructure.

So, now is the time to start planning your migration process if you haven't already.

What this means for you:

No patches or security updates will be available after July 2015 that will put your applications and business at risk.

By migrating to Windows 2012 R2 Server , Microsoft Azure or Office 365, you can achieve concrete benefits, including improved performance, reduced maintenance requirements, and increased agility and speed of response to the business.
